NURSING TIMES

Nutritional tactics

THE EAGER RUSH to take this palatable, highly nutritious, vitamin food concentrate gladdens the heart of every nurse or mother anxious for the welfare and happiness of the young ones.

'Vimaltol' is a definite aid in the dietary of infants and growing children. Its malt extract, yeast, halibut liver oil and iron, fortified by essential vitamins, help to build strong bones and sound teeth and assist in the development of robust, sturdy bodies.

The formula of 'Vimaltol' is based on the ideas of present-day leading authorities on nutritional science. It can be confidently recommended for children and adults who are underweight, or lacking in energy and vitality.

THE "FITZROY" NURSE'S BRIEF CASE

This brief style case is constructed of modern materials, and in modern style, and is especially suited to the nursing profession.

The interior is fitted with a document compartment, secured with a zip fastener, and a "wet-pack" waterproof pocket, increasing the versatility of the case.

The foundation of this case consists of a strong metal frame, whilst the outer covering is finished in either black or tan, and is fitted with a secure fastener and lock.

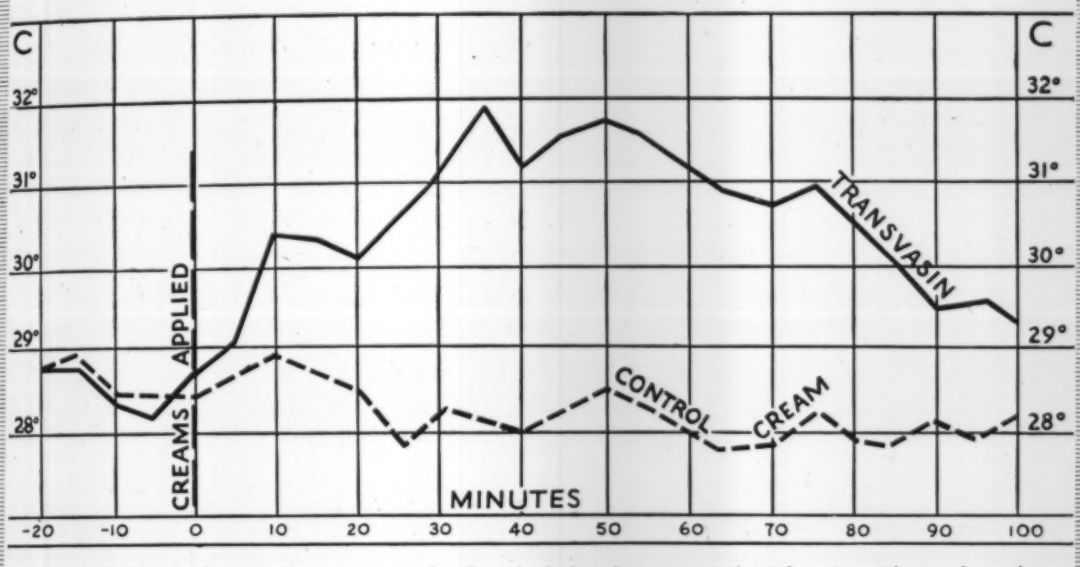
An experiment to show the effect of Transvasin on skin temperature



The graph above is of an experiment to measure the effect of Transvasin on skin temperature on a subject. The solid line plots the skin temperature before and at intervals after a single application of one inch of cream (0.924 grams) from a tube of Transvasin. The broken line gives similar information with regard to the application of a plain vanishing cream used as a control. Skin temperatures were measured with an electro-thermo couple every five minutes for two hours.

It is generally agreed that cases of soft-tissue rheumatism and of many types of arthritis benefit by hyperaemia of the affected tissues. Transvasin, which contains two quick-acting esters of nicotinic acid, induces such a deep and prolonged hyperaemia at the same time as it produces superficial erythema.

In addition to the esters of nicotinic acid, Transvasin contains the fat- and water-soluble esters of salicylic and p-aminobenzoic acids. Both these well-tried analgesic drugs are readily conveyed through the skin in therapeutic quantities and enable an effective concentration to be built up where they are needed.

Transvasin is now being widely prescribed, with successful clinical results. Since a very small quantity is sufficient for each application, the cost of treatment is extremely low.

COMPOSITION

Salicylic acid tetrahydrofurfuryl-ester	14%
Nicotinic acid ethyl-ester	2%
Nicotinic acid n-hexyl-ester	2%
p-Aminobenzoic acid ethyl-ester	2%
Water-miscible base ad	100%

Transvasin is available in 1¼oz. tubes, price 4/3, and is not advertised to the public. Samples and literature will be gladly sent on application.

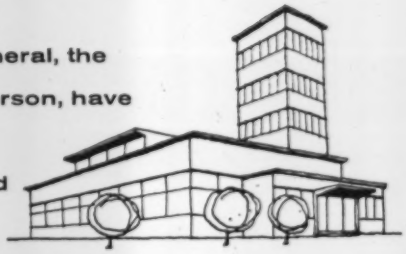
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS—Contd. on Supplement

Canada needs 50 nurses

FOR HOSPITALS IN HAMILTON, ONTARIO

The three city-owned hospitals, the General, the Mountain and the Nora-Frances Henderson, have recently undergone an expansion programme and are in immediate need of a minimum of 50 S.R.N. Nurses



Recognized as one of the most modern-equipped hospitals in Canada, the Hamilton General offers the Registered Nurse working and recreational facilities second to none.

Situated in the heart of what has been termed the 'Golden Horseshoe', Hamilton is a city of almost equal distance to Toronto and Buffalo, big enough to be interesting, yet small enough to be friendly and hospitable to the individual.

THE RATES OF PAY to Registered Nurses are the highest in the Province of Ontario. For Registered Nurses who work rotating hours of service, the commencing salary is $53.00 (£19.17.0) per week. The daily rate is $10.50 (£3.18.8) for each eight hour period of duty.

HOURS OF DUTY: (a) 8-hour day—42 hours weekly average—rotating service. Days: 7 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. or 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Evenings: 3 p.m. to 11.30 p.m.; Nights: 11.15 p.m. to 7.15 a.m. These schedules include one half hour for each meal and 15 minutes for morning coffee. (b) Two days off three successive weeks and one day off every fourth week. (c) All statutory holidays or compensatory time.

HOLIDAYS: Registered Nurses after one year of service receive 3 weeks' holiday with pay. It is less than 200 miles to the beautiful Muskoka Lakes District.

The Hospital will advance cost of transportation if required on a repayment basis.

Here is a unique opportunity for Registered Nurses to come to a thriving community where your opportunities are unlimited

Midwifery and Nursing Annual Reports

THE report of the Central Midwives Board for the year ending March 31, 1956, emphasizes the responsibility of the midwife in the care of dangerous drugs and the occasional but serious incidence of offences relating to drugs of addiction, which may mean the termination of the midwife's professional career.

Nor is the misuse of such drugs confined to junior staff and the Board suspects that only a small proportion of offenders are dealt with by the statutory bodies. The appendix to the report (being the memorandum submitted by the Board to the joint sub-committee on the control of dangerous drugs in hospital, appointed by the Central Health Services Council in 1955) states that since 1949 the Central Midwives Board has dealt with four matrons, two assistant matrons, one night superintendent and seven sisters. It states that from the histories of cases brought before the Board it appears that if there is an irregularity concerning dangerous drugs in hospital, the person thought to be responsible may be given the opportunity to resign, the matter not being reported to the responsible statutory bodies. The Board stresses the importance of the double checking of drugs in hospital and in particular in small general practitioner maternity units where pethidine is obtained on a doctor's prescription and not on a medical officer's supply order.

During the current year 10 penal cases were dealt with by the Board; in six cases (four being related to the misuse of drugs) the name of the midwife was removed from the Roll. Nurses, midwives and hospital and health authorities must face the realization of the opportunity nurses and midwives have for the misuse of drugs, and the tragedy of drug addiction which can ruin a career and, indeed, a whole life.

Interesting figures are also given in the report. During the 12 months ending January 31, 1956, 17,145 midwives notified their intention to practise; an increase of 63 on the previous year's figure. Midwives who were not also general or sick children's nurses numbered 3,703 or 21.6 per cent. of those practising.

Pupil midwives entering Part 1 training schools during the year numbered 4,684, a decrease of 133; those entering Part 2 training schools numbered 2,953, a decrease of 61. Inspection of training by the Board's educational supervisors was continued; of the 179 visits paid, eight were special visits to schools where the Board was of the opinion that the training was not up to the required standard. A total of 5,142 candidates entered for the first examination and 23.1 per cent. failed; 3,151 entered for the second examination and 12.3 per cent. failed.

For the Midwife Teachers Diploma, 106 candidates entered for the first part of the examination and 40 were successful; 78 entered for the second part and 46 were successful. From the residential Midwife Teachers Training College, Kingston Hill, Surrey, 17 of the 29 candidates were successful in the first examination and 13 of the 15 entrants passed the second examination.

The Board approved during the year two schemes for integrated nursing and midwifery training; one by the Queen's Institute of District Nursing in conjunction with Hammersmith Hospital and Battersea Polytechnic, a four-year course; and one between St. Thomas' Hospital and Southampton University, approximately a five-year course.

THE annual report to March 31, 1956, of the General Nursing Council for England and Wales, in contrast to the report of the Central Midwives Board commented on above, confines its contents to matters relating to training. No reference is made to the disciplinary sessions of the Council or to the offences which have resulted in the removal of names from the Register.

The problem of finance required by the area nurse training committees is a cause for concern. They spent over £100,000 more than in the previous year and restraint called for in any new developments during the current year was deplored. Various committees activities are mentioned, including a research project continuing the Nuffield job analysis on the work of nurses in hospital wards, by the South Eastern Metropolitan area nurse training committee, and an investigation into the results of the Council's examinations in training schools of the Liverpool area committee.

At March 31, 1956, there were 51,102 student nurses in training for the Council's examinations. The number discontinuing training was 7,323, a welcome decrease on the figure of 8,312 for the previous year. As the report states, the problem " is not one of how to recruit more and more student nurses—what other profession or, indeed, any occupation, can claim to have recruited nearly 19,000 candidates in the past year—but how to retain student nurses throughout the training." More careful selection with a lower figure for recruitment would, it suggests, result in a fall in wastage proportionately greater than the reduction in intake.

The numbers of student nurses taking the Council's examinations reached a total figure of 40,692. An interesting table shows the number of women and men respectively who passed the final examinations for the several parts of the Register; for example—final general examinations, 9,297 women and 488 men; mental, 334 women and 382 men; mental deficiency, 60 women and 66 men.

The Council welcomed an increase in the number of applications for appointment to the panel of examiners but more are needed, especially from the North of England and to a lesser extent from the Midlands.

Hospitals approved to take part in the training of student nurses for all parts of the Register numbered 978; 8 being newly approved and 13 having had approval withdrawn. Experimental schemes of training are also referred to.

The report deals with the training of pupil assistant nurses for admission to the Roll; 426 hospitals, including two R.A.F. hospitals, were approved for this training. Part-time training schemes had increased from one to six.

The Council had considered the training of mental and mental deficiency nurses and the Ministry of Health memorandum on the course of instruction for nursing assistants in mental hospitals. They noted also the reference to the nursing assistant as a 'nurse', which could lead to a contravention of the Nurses Act 1943.

The report refers to the training of nurse tutors, also to applications for registration from 595 nurses trained outside the United Kingdom in countries not covered by existing agreements, and refers again to the unsatisfactory position with regard to the Minister's List.

The Education and Examination Committee of the General Nursing Council had submitted written evidence to the joint sub-committee set up to consider the desirability of adopting a standard system for determining the responsibility for the custody and issue of dangerous drugs and scheduled poisons in hospitals, and for recording their requisitioning; the committee's evidence related to points with which the Council is concerned from the point of view of the training of nurses.

Topical Notes

Industrial Safety—

THE ACCIDENT RATE in industry continues to fall, and in 1955 was lower than ever before, but in the case of 'green' labour (young people and women entering industry for the first time) the rate of progress is slower than in other categories. This is causing some concern to the Chief Inspector of Factories, as revealed in his annual report for the year 1955. The importance of improved instruction and supervision is stressed, to ensure safe working methods and observance of protective measures by new entrants. Reference is made in the report to new industrial safety problems encountered on the increasing adoption of automation, but improvements in safety standards in this field now that more experience has been gained are noted. It is pointed out that it is not now so much the rank and file operators in an electronic plant who are at risk, these being generally more or less 'push button' jobs, but the staff engaged in the control and maintenance of the electrical machinery itself.

—And Health

IN INDUSTRIAL HEALTH the outstanding event of the year, according to the Chief Inspector of Factories, was the undertaking, on the advice of the Industrial Health Advisory Committee, of two surveys—a review of conditions affecting health in all factories in a single locality (Halifax); the other a survey of a single industry (pottery). A survey was also carried out during the year of the medical and nursing services in industry and it was disclosed that the provision of medical and nursing services in smaller factories and undertakings was increasing, but it was in this field that the problem was still the most acute. The report commends group schemes, such as those at Slough and Harlow, and the hope is expressed that smaller establishments will follow the example of such schemes and group themselves together where possible. The Chief Inspector makes a plea for a national standard of industrial health records which would be of great assistance in compiling statistics. Air contamination is still a problem not satisfactorily solved, and local exhaust ventilation was the main cause of complaints received. A great improvement in atmospheric conditions had been reported from the Manchester area, resulting from the introduction of a smokeless zone, and this had considerably eased the ventilation problem in many local factories.

Princess Marie Louise

NURSES WILL HAVE LEARNED with real regret of the death of Her Highness Princess Marie Louise at the age of 84, the only surviving grand-daughter of Queen Victoria. The Princess has always been a true friend of the nursing profession and was frequently, until very recently, present as the guest of honour at functions connected with nursing, hospital and health services. In spite of her great age, she was tireless in fulfilling innumerable engagements for the good of the many causes which enlisted her support. She was an informed and forthright speaker, and her recently published memoirs tell of a full life and afford many an intimate glimpse of court life of the Victorian

One of the latest proofs of the Princess's concern for the welfare of the less fortunate was her consent, given recently, for her name to be used in the title of Gosfield Hall, Halstead, Essex, an Elizabethan manor newly acquired and restored by the Wayfarers' Trust, to be used as a residential nursing home for the elderly sick and infirm of limited means, and to be called 'The Princess Marie Louise Nursing Home'.

District Nursing Service, Jamaica

MISS ROSALIE HUNT, S.R.N., S.C.M., R.F.N., Q.I.D.N. CERT., H.V. CERT., assistant county superintendent, Dorset, has been seconded by the Queen's Institute for a period of six months to inaugurate the Hyacinth Lightbourne district nursing service in Jamaica. Miss Hunt will be flying to Jamaica on January 8. The service is being established as a memorial to Dr. Hyacinth Lightbourne, a brilliant and much loved medical officer of health in Kingston, who died last April as the result of a car accident. On the morning of her death she had been discussing with the senior members of the public health nursing staff the urgent need for district nurses. A memorial fund was inaugurated and it was decided to devote the proceeds to the establishment of a district nursing service. The Jamaican General Trained Nurses Association having seen in the nursing press that Miss Dixon, deputy general superintendent of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing, was visiting Canada and New York this year, asked that she should visit Jamaica before returning, to advise on the setting up of a district nursing service. Following her visit it was decided to start the service in Kingston in 1957.

CHRISTMAS IN HOSPITAL . . .

£50 is offered in prizes for Ward Amenity Funds for the best descriptions of ward decorations. Entries, preferably illustrated, can be submitted by staff individually or as a team, or by patients. For full particulars and entry form see page 1308.

The Royal College of Midwives

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MIDWIVES has received a gift of £10,000 as an educational trust, through the Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust. Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother laid the foundation stone of the new headquarters of the College in Mansfield Street, Marylebone, on May 24 this year and the building is already nearing completion. The midwives, with the help of friends, supporters, and mothers of new babies, have already raised over £83,000.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NURSES OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND

Grand Council Meeting

Miss Duff Grant, president, addressing the meeting with, seated, Mr. Sharpe, Miss Lane, Miss Rowe and Miss Cochrane.

THE annual meeting of the Grand Council of the National Council of Nurses of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, held at Riddell House, St. Thomas' Hospital, on December 7, was presided over by Miss L. G. Duff Grant, R.R.C., president of the National Council. After welcoming 175 representatives of the various member associations to the meeting, which was preceded by a service in the chapel of St. Thomas' Hospital, Miss Duff Grant called upon Miss Perrin-Brown, deputy matron, who, in the unavoidable absence of Miss T. Turner, matron, extended a message of good wishes.

The results of the election of honorary officers of the National Council were then declared by the returning officer and hon. solicitor, Mr. Harold Sharpe, as follows: third vice-president, Lady Mann; directors, Miss M. B. Powell, matron of St. George's Hospital, and Miss J. E. Clark, matron of the Royal Infirmary, Sheffield. Thanks were expressed to the retiring members: Dame Katherine Watt, former first vice-president, and Miss M. E. Davies, Cardiff, director, also to Lady Mann whose term as a director was concluded but who remained on the Council as a vice-president.

It was reported that the fee for associate membership of the International Hospital Federation had been raised to £10 and a recommendation of the board of directors was therefore approved discontinuing the affiliation of the National Council to this organization, in whose affairs the National Council takes little direct part.

A letter was discussed from the executive secretary of the International Council of Nurses asking the opinion of

Some Aspects of Redeployment and the Health Visitor—2

by BEATRICE M. LANGTON, D.N.(LOND.), Superintendent Health Visitor, Salford.

REASONS for advocating the delegation of the less skilled and technical duties of health visitors to others have been put forward in last week's article. Several questions remain to be answered.

Other Grades of Worker

What type of worker other than the health visitor could be usefully employed in the health visiting service? What qualifications are required? What duties could be delegated?

Three types of worker instead of one are suggested, with the health visitor in charge and all working as a team: (1) Health visitor. (2) State-registered nurse. (3) Ancillary worker.

Suggested basic qualifications for ancillary workers are the certificate of First Aid, Home Nursing and Child Welfare of the British Red Cross or the St. John Ambulance Association, and membership of the National Hospital Service Reserve, plus some in-service training. It is not necessary for these workers to be State-enrolled assistant nurses.

Duties to be delegated (or relegated) may be discussed under the different categories into which health visitors' duties fall, viz.—home visiting, clinic, school and office work, and health education outside these spheres.

Of these, domiciliary work and health education lend themselves least to delegation, and clinic, school and clerical work most.

Clinic Work

Theoretically, the primary function of a health visitor at a clinic is educational. In practice she performs this function when other duties permit. She may be engaged in any of the following.

(1) Preparation and clearing up of clinic. Cleaning cupboards.

(2) Changing paper lining bowls or baskets in use when babies are undressed.

(3) Marking register, finding charts or cards, and making out new record cards.

(4) Weighing babies, toddlers, schoolchildren, expectant mothers.

(5) Dispensing medicaments, sometimes involving mixing ointments, counting tablets, etc.

(6) Treating minor ailments.

(7) Assisting the doctor which often involves little more than, for example, bringing in charts, helping expectant mothers on and off couch, changing paper covering on pillow; arranging position of mother and preparing tray if necessary for examination; washing and sterilizing equipment and preparing site of injection for immunization, vaccination or venupuncture; taking temperature, handing doctor towel, spatulae, syringe or other equipment as required; making the doctor a cup of tea; putting buttons in the doctor's coat; even warming the doctor's coat in winter!

(8) Taking blood pressure, or applying arm band if doctor does this.

(9) Withdrawal of intravenous blood for W.R. or other tests if not undertaken by doctor.

(10) Ensuring that the mother understands the doctor's instructions.

(11) Seeing and advising each individual mother deciding which cases should be referred to the doctor, giving home background information to the doctor.

(12) Group teaching and demonstration.

(13) Assisting at special clinics—E.N.T., orthopaedic, eye, skin, etc.

(14) Carrying out vision tests—Snellen, illiterate E and colour vision; and audiometry tests.

(15) Treating scabies and verminous conditions.

(16) Assistance at dental clinic.

How should these duties be divided among the team? The types of clinic attended by health visitors include antenatal clinics, infant welfare clinics, immunization and vaccination clinics, minor ailments and other school clinics, chest clinics, dental clinics and clinics for the treatment of scabies and vermin.

If we analyse the duties relating to each and allocate them to appropriate members of the team—always bearing in mind the health visitor's primary function—it is surprising to see how large a number could be delegated or relegated.

It will be seen moreover, on studying Chart I, that the greater part of the work in clinics not requiring the services of a health visitor does not require the services of a trained nurse either.

What is the position relating to work in schools? Duties undertaken by health visitors in schools may include the following.

(1) Carrying out periodic examination of children ranging from full physical examination to head inspection.

(2) Re-inspection of unsatisfactory children.

(3) Vision tests.

(4) Hearing tests.

(5) Assisting at medical inspections—preparing room, marshalling children, helping undressing, weighing, measuring, making out record cards. Assisting the doctor—and all this entails—taking temperature if required, giving doctor information about home conditions (if known and if required): Advising mothers attending. Joining doctor in conference with head and class teachers at end of session.

(6) Conferring with teaching staff.

(7) Individual talks—group talks, class teaching.

In this section of the school health service there is no place for the State-registered nurse. Duties not requiring the service of a health visitor can quite well be undertaken by an ancillary worker—as is shown in Chart II.

Not everyone will agree that the health visitor should be relieved of so much. But an honest analysis of the duties in question will show there is strong justification for their delegation.

A Duty to be Delegated?

Take, for example, assisting the doctor. Rarely has more time been lost by qualified nurses than in assisting doctors in public health and school health departments—where there is less need for skilled nursing assistance than in any other branch of medicine.

The reason usually advanced in any argument is that the nurse or health visitor can give the doctor information about home circumstances of the children, and that she can interpret the doctor's instruction to the mother.

Again analysing the situation, how often is such information sought and how often in these days of smaller districts can such information be given on the spot? School clinics, schools and antenatal clinics are attended by mothers and children from several health visitors' areas, not just one.

And why is it necessary for a nurse at a clinic to interpret the doctor's instructions? In selected cases—yes—but the majority of doctors are capable of making themselves understood by the average mother.

Domiciliary Work

Domiciliary work covers so wide a field that it is impossible to include all its ramifications in a paper of this kind, and the details set out in Chart III are necessarily inexhaustive. Duties suggested as suitable for delegation or relegation are comparatively few.

This question of redeployment, with all its implications—delegation and relegation in particular—needs the most urgent consideration. It is unlikely that the great opportunities for development at present open to the health visiting profession, if missed now, will ever present themselves again.

Delegation is the first step forward; let us see that it is not missed.

CHART I — CLINIC DUTIES

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	LAY ASSISTANT AND/OR CLERK
ANTENATAL CLINIC	Act as hostess. Group teaching and demonstration. Advising on any individual problem outside the province of the midwife. Acting as liaison officer between the clinic and other health visitors. No need otherwise for more than one health visitor to attend an antenatal clinic at one time.	Take blood pressure and intravenous blood specimens for Wassermann and other tests, where non-medical staff are required to undertake this work.	Act as receptionist/chaperon. Urine testing. Attend to requirements of the doctor; weigh mothers; distribute vitamins. Prepare and clear up centre.
INFANT WELFARE CENTRES	Examine babies and toddlers. Interview and advise individually every mother. Decide which cases shall be referred for medical or psychiatric consultation, and give the doctor where appropriate any information regarding home conditions. Group teaching and demonstration.	Nil	Keep register. Distribute vitamins, dried milk and medicaments. Weigh children. Attend to requirements of doctor. Filing cards and charts. Prepare and clear up centre. Assist health visitor generally.
DIPHTHERIA IMMUNIZATION AND VACCINATION CLINICS*	Nil	Carry out actual immunization. If a doctor performs this function a nurse is not necessary.	Clerical work; marshal children; prepare and clear up centre; prepare all needles, syringes, etc., used for immunization, prior to sterilization by autoclave or hot air oven. Sterilize equipment during clinic session if required. Prepare site for injection, assist the doctor.
ULTRA VIOLET LIGHT CLINIC*	Nil	Nil	Nil
MINOR AILMENTS CLINIC*	Nil	One trained nurse to undertake the more skilled work, e.g., treatment of ears, eyes, and so on, and to supervise the clinic.	Assist in treating minor conditions under supervision of trained nurse. Clerical work. Prepare and clear up centre.
OTHER SCHOOL CLINICS*	Nil	(a) Routine examinations—nil. (b) Special clinics—only if it is likely that treatment may be ordered on the spot which only a trained nurse could carry out.	Attend to requirements of doctor; clerical work; distribute vitamins; simple urine testing and Snellen eye-testing if required.

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	LAY ASSISTANT AND/OR CLERK
CHEST CLINICS	(a) Be available for consultation with patients regarding medico-social problems—to give personal advice and to carry out health education. (b) Effect interchange of information regarding home circumstances on the one hand and clinic findings and treatment on the other, and keep the health visiting staff informed as to trends in treatment.	Take charge and supervise the running of the clinic—preparation of equipment, e.g. artificial pneumothorax, aspiration and so on, and assist the doctor with such procedures.	Receptionist/chaperon. Weigh patients; take temperatures; assist generally.
DENTAL CLINICS*	Nil	Nil, apart from duties in recovery room at gas sessions for expectant mothers.	Duties in recovery room.
SCABIES AND OTHER VERMINOUS CONDITIONS*	Nil	Nil	Treatment of scabies; disinfestation of verminous heads.

* Health visitor's function as an educator and medico-social worker; these would be a secondary instead of primary measure.

CHART II — SCHOOLS

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	LAY ASSISTANT AND/OR CLERK
HEALTH SURVEY	A most important feature of the work of the school health visitors. Each child undressed and examined twice yearly—general condition noted—posture—skin—feet—eyes (test if necessary)—ears, hair, etc., and defects of any kind referred for appropriate action. Defective clothing and footwear noted with view to subsequent follow-up. Full advantage should be taken of opportunity for individual health teaching, and for consultation with teachers. This is essential at any visit, as teacher is source of information regarding disturbed behaviour. Health visitor should consider that problems of behaviour and signs of undue emotional strain demand her attention just as urgently as do physical defects. Children showing, for example, signs of poor group adjustment—timid—nervous—insecure; those with an unsatisfactory attitude to authority—over-dependent—unresponsive, disturbers of the peace; the child who makes use of symptoms to evade challenging situation; and those with delinquency problems—lying, stealing, truancy. (Refer to specialist agencies difficulties beyond her scope.)	Nil	Assist with undressing of younger children; clerical work and assisting the health visitor in general.
HYGIENE INSPECTION	Receive reports from attendants carrying out examination and take appropriate action.	Nil	Carry out head inspection and report to health visitor.
RE-INSPECTION OR RE-VISIT	Pay weekly visit to school to see in appropriate cases: (a) children known to be unsatisfactory—physically, mentally, emotionally, or socially; (b) children referred by attendant; (c) children referred by teacher.	Nil	Conduct re-inspection as directed by health visitor.
SCHOOL MEDICAL INSPECTION (a) at 5 years	If school health visitor doing combined work and, say, at least half the number of children live in her area, she should attend medical inspection to ensure that a full history is given to the doctor where necessary. Otherwise she should attend after the session to confer with doctor and teacher.	Nil	Prepare room. Assist in dressing of younger children; weighing, measuring and marshalling of children. Assist the doctor. Clerical work.
(b) at other ages	Give information before and attend after the session for interchange of information on: (a) home circumstances—if known to health visitor and if required; (b) findings of health visitor at annual survey and other examinations where appropriate; (c) findings of the doctor conducting the examination. There is no need for health visitors to be present at the medical examination of thousands of healthy children.	Nil	Prepare room. Assist in dressing of younger children; weighing, measuring and marshalling of children. Assist the doctor. Clerical work.

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	LAY ASSISTANT AND/OR CLERK
VISION TESTING	Testing of any child referred by attendant if appropriate.	Nil	Snellen and Illiterate 'E' testing; colour vision tests.
HEARING TESTING	Nil	Nil	Selected workers trained to undertake audiometry tests.
TEACHING IN SCHOOL	Class teaching where permitted, as well as group and individual health teaching; should include talks or lessons on personal health, parentcraft, social services, child care, home-making, etc.	Nil	Nil
GENERAL ADVISER	Link between home, school and other appropriate agencies. Should be concerned with promotion of an all-pervading health programme throughout the whole school—built upon good relationships with school staff (with consequent enhancement of the status of the health visitor). Talks to parent-teacher associations. Be available for advising in connection with school meals, cloakroom and sanitary arrangements, first aid and so on. Give information authoritatively about current health trends and needs, e.g., M.M.R., BCG, poliomyelitis precautions, vaccination, etc., to staff and pupils.	Nil	Nil

CHART III — DOMICILIARY

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	ANCILLARY WORKER
EXPECTANT MOTHERS	For any social, educational or other reason outside the province of a midwife. The midwife should pay home visits to decide whether or not home is suitable for confinement, and to advise on preparation for the event.	Nil	Nil
CHILDREN (a) Healthy 0-1 yrs.	Psychologists say this is the most important time when the foundations of emotional life are laid and character formed. Frequent selective visiting should be carried out and priority given to this age group.	Nil	Nil
(b) Healthy 1-5 yrs.	Visiting should also be discretionary based upon opinions formed during 0-1 period but should aim at seeing each child at home or centre at least once a year.	Follow-up selected cases of absenteeism from clinics, and other cases at discretion of health visitor.	Visits concerned with making appointments for specialist clinics, tracing removals and so on—as directed by health visitor.
(c) Handicapped, sick, or maladjusted of any age.	Selective visiting according to the type of home and mother, in order to advise on management, teach home nursing, prevention of spread of infection, and care of mentally and physically handicapped child. Visiting in order to report on home conditions with regard to possible admission to or discharge from hospital or convalescent home. Help family and child adapt to changed environment. Social work—care—support.	Revisit as directed by health visitor, especially cases of infectious diseases, such as measles, to ensure adequate nursing and that proper precautions carried out to prevent spread of infection.	Visits concerned with appointments for specialist clinics.
(d) Children cared for in homes other than their own.	Routine and selective visits should be the rule here. All foster children should be notified to the medical officer of health for this purpose. Special attention to mental and emotional needs.	Nil	Nil
(e) Unsatisfactorily cared for children including those belonging to problem families, neglected children and and certain illegitimate children. Children needing follow-up visits after school survey.	Regular and frequent visiting according to the degree of unsatisfactory care. This is one of the most important duties of the health visitor and should receive priority. Social support and re-education. Co-operation with other social workers. Emphasis on practical teaching.	Nil	As directed by the health visitor to 'assist' mothers to cleanse the verminous heads which are a persistent feature of child neglect, and using such opportunities to teach the mother proper technique in cleansing.

SUGGESTED DUTIES FOR	HEALTH VISITOR	S.R.N.	ANCILLARY WORKE
ADOLESCENTS	Potential problem parents—e.g., educationally sub-normal children after leaving school—regarding employment, recreation and other influences.
ADULTS (a) Needing advice in case of physical or mental illness or handicap, or where there is a social problem.	Visit to find out home circumstances in relation to possible admission to or discharge from hospital; advise on care of patients discharged from hospital; advise and help with social problems; visit in collaboration with general practitioners and other social workers. Help to adapt environment to needs of handicapped, as well as help patient adapt (mentally as well as physically) to environment and changed circumstances.	Nil	Practical work such a weekly bathing and simpl foot hygiene for the age Delousing at home verm inous persons unable t attend a cleansing statio and the treatment o scabies in the hom where necessary, a directed by health visit
(b) Aged and infirm.	As for above. Special visiting where (1) living alone or neglected, (2) incapable of managing own affairs, (3) refusing hospital or other institutional care, (4) persons in 'half-way' state between full health and need for hospital care, (5) other medico-social problems. Contacting relatives, friends, statutory and voluntary agencies.	Follow-up visits as directed by health visitor.
(c) In need of special care, e.g. unmarried mothers, deserted wives, prisoners' wives.	Advise on any health, emotional, personal or social problems. Put in touch with appropriate social agency and co-operate with these agencies in assisting the family. Help family to adjust itself to problem, and if possible and appropriate in the case of unmarried mothers, to accept the girl and her baby into the household; give continuous personal support where necessary.	Nil	Nil
(d) Tuberculosis patients and their families and contacts.	Visiting all newly notified cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, re-visit active pulmonary cases say monthly, paying particular attention to child contacts in dangerous 0-5 age group; re-visit quiescent cases say every six months; re-visit any case more frequently according to need—social, educational, preventive or curative. Visit—mental and emotional adjustment; financial problems; re-housing recommendations. Rehabilitation. Put in touch with appropriate social agencies.	May in selected cases re-visit quiescent cases at discretion of health visitor.	Nil
MISCELLANEOUS	Those people coming within no definite category—the suspected T.B. or V.D. patient, mentally disturbed, depressed, who will not seek medical advice. Although no definite diagnosis, such people are the health visitor's responsibility. The potential dangers associated with them are manifold.	Immunization of children 0-5 years in the home—as directed by the health visitor.	Nil

CHART IV — IN-SERVICE TRAINING OF ANCILLARY WORKERS

Practical in-service training of ancillary workers in my own area has included the following:

1. Preparation and clearing up of clinics.
2. Simple urine testing.
3. Snellen vision testing.
4. Illiterate E vision testing.
5. Preparation of syringes, tubes and needles, and their setting up ready for sterilization by autoclave or hot-air oven. This included instruction by a technician in the use of an Arkansas stove for sharpening needles.
6. Weighing and measuring schoolchildren.
7. Weighing babies and toddlers.
8. Examination of heads for verminous infestation.
9. Cleansing of heads of verminous children.
10. Treatment of minor ailments under supervision.
11. How to assist the health visitor at a school survey.
12. How to assist the health visitor at a maternity and child welfare centre.
13. How to assist medical officers at various clinics.
14. How to assist the chiropodist.
15. Simple foot hygiene (care of the elderly).
16. Treatment of scabies and body vermin.

In selected cases aides were taught—

(a) Audiometer testing.

(b) The use of a Woods lamp for diagnosis of ringworm.

(c) How to extract the acarus scabiei and examine under microscope to confirm diagnosis of scabies.

Workers were also taught correct approach to parents and children, elderly people, schoolteachers; scope and limitation of their work and so on.

International Conference at Sèvres

THE PLANNING OF NURSING STUDIES

The historic Centre International Pédagogique at Sèvres, where conference members stayed and worked.

THE conference on The Planning of Nursing Studies organized by the Florence Nightingale International Foundation in association with the International Council of Nurses was held at the Centre International d'Etudes Pédagogique at Sèvres, near Paris, from November 11 to 25.

The purpose was 'To promote research, to find the best methods for research and to give leadership to research', and it was the first conference of its kind at international level to be held in the world.

The 37 senior nurses representing 20 countries who enjoyed this unique experience included, from this country, Miss G. A. Ramsden, research organizer, Dan Mason Nursing Research Committee; Mrs. J. Heyward, nurse member, Division for Architectural Studies, Nuffield Foundation; Miss A. E. A. Squibbs, principal sister tutor, The General Infirmary at Leeds, and Miss E. J. Worthy, principal sister tutor, The Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street, London.

The leader of the conference was Miss Margaret G. Arnstein, chief, Division of Nursing Resources, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Other members of the staff included Professor Fraser Brockington, School of Preventive Medicine, Manchester University, and, as special lecturers, Mlle Bihet, directrice, Institut Edith Cavell-Marie Dépage, Brussels, and president of the International Council of Nurses, and Mrs. R. Louise McManus, director, Division of Nursing Education, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York. Also assisting were Miss Lyle Creelman, chief, Nursing Section, WHO; Miss Fernanda Alves Diniz, regional nursing officer (Europe), WHO; and Miss Frances Beck, F.N.I.F. Miss D. C. Bridges, executive secretary, ICN, presided at the final session.

Group Research Project

Apart from the opening session in French, the proceedings were in English. Lectures were given in the mornings followed by open discussion. The afternoon sessions were mostly devoted to group work. After some exercises in recording observations, small groups planned a research project. The methods suggested were compared stage by stage with a study that had been carried out on patient care in a hospital in the United States of America.

Many of the participants had come with little or no knowledge of research procedures yet so careful had been the planning by the organizers and so skilled the presentation of the subject that most left with some confidence in their ability to participate in nursing research: no mean achievement and a great credit to Miss Ellen Broe, director, Florence Nightingale International Foundation, and the staff.

None of those who enjoyed the hospitality will forget their stay at Sèvres, the outings to Paris, Versailles or Chartres, and the happy hours spent with colleagues from so many different countries.

Book Reviews

Baby and Child Care

—by Benjamin Spock, M.D. Illustrations by Dorothea Fox. (Pocket Books Inc., New York, obtainable from Thorpe and Porter Limited, East Street, Oadby, Leicester, 4s. 6d.)

This is a reprint of an old favourite. It has even been serialized in a Sunday paper. It contains much sensible advice, from preparing for the baby, to schools and puberty development. There are chapters on special problems, illness, feeding and development, diet and so on. Religion is the only omission. All very sensible, written in colloquial, easy-to-read American. The emphasis is always on enjoying your children without fuss.

As an old-fashioned Englishwoman, I always find American life fascinating. I am shocked to hear that when children show a universal craving for something . . . we've got to assume that it has a positive constructive value for them . . . "; and " the people who write them (comics) are only turning out what they have found that children want most ". Well really, that does bring in the lowest common denominator. How can a child develop unless he is led ?

Then there is the glimpse we are given of babies who never go out in the winter because their mothers dislike the cold. (Dr. Spock is in favour of fresh air, two or three hours of it a day). And then in summer it is too hot to go out. Perhaps we are lucky in our climate after all.

Dr. Spock recommends breast feeding. He spends four pages on it. He spends another four pages on 'When the breast milk is insufficient' and 'Weaning from the breast'. He spends 27½ pages on bottle feeding. The milk he recommends is evaporated milk; he probably knows American fresh milk. I must admit that even for an English country-dweller it is becoming very difficult to buy fresh milk—no wonder children dislike 'milk'.

There is both a list of contents and a comprehensive index, so that the book can easily be used as a reference book. The print is clear if not beautiful. Some of the drawings seem curiously chosen—a milk bottle upside-down, for example: it would seem fairly easy to understand the written text—"shake the bottle vigorously upside-down" without a drawing; similarly "measuring with a cup, boiling in a saucepan".

The book is conveniently small, roughly Penguin size. It has been found useful and popular in previous editions.

Antenatal Illustrated

The Natural Approach to Happy Motherhood.—by Grantly Dick Read, M.A., M.D.(CANTAB.). (William Heinemann Medical Books Limited, 99, Great Russell Street, London, W.C.1, 3s. 6d.)

Dr. Grantly Dick Read's four basic principles are clearly set out in this booklet which is intended for the mother-to-be. These four principles in preparing a woman for childbirth are Education, Correct Breathing, Relaxation and Exercises. The text is concise and clear, and is copiously illustrated by excellent photographs. In addition there is a section on the hygiene of pregnancy. For those who have not the time or inclination to read Dr. Dick Read's longer books, Natural Childbirth and Childbirth Without Fear, this is a good substitute and as such can be confidently recommended.

Anti-Poliomyelitis Vaccination

QUESTIONS such as 'What are the risks of anti-po vaccination?' 'How long does the immunity last' 'Are vaccinated children infectious?' 'How are monkeys obtained and treated?' . . . must often be ask by parents, from those in the public health servic particular. They are examples of questions—with answers given in simple, direct language—which published in a pamphlet by the Research Defence Soci and entitled Anti-Poliomyelitis Vaccination ('Conqu Pamphlet' No. 1). price 3d. each from the Society, at Chandos Street, Cavendish Square, London, W.1. It been prepared to help parents decide whether or not have their children vaccinated against poliomyelitis.

Most health workers would no doubt have necessary knowledge to answer most of the eight questi dealt with in the booklet, but these model answers wo be helpful in answering questions in the simplest and straightforward manner, so as to be instantly grasped by lay person. The fairly detailed information of the sour of supply, transport and treatment of the monkeys used the production of the vaccine may not be nearly so wid known, and will come as a relief to many who are concern about the humane treatment of animals.

CHRISTMAS ANTHOLOGY

YULE TIDE FIRES

Cleanse with the burning log of oak
The canker of thy care,
Deck with the scarlet-berried bough
The temple of the fair;
Spread pure-white linen for a feast,
Perchance some guest may share.

Give forth thy gold and silver coins,
For they were lent to thee;
Put out to usury thy dross,
One talent gaineth three.
Perchance the hungered and the poor
May pray to God for thee.

Once a pale star rose in the East
For watching herds to see,
And weakness came to Bethlehem,
And strength to Galilee.
Perchance, if thou dost keep thy tryst,
A star may rise for thee.

BEARING GIFTS WE TRAVERSE AFAR

A Chinese Nativity Scene

DECEMBER 25, 1660.—Had a pleasant walk to White Hall, where I intended to have received the communion with the family, but I come a little too late. So I walked up into the house and spent my time looking over pictures, particularly the ships in King Henry the VIIIth's Voyage to Bullonn (Boulogne), marking the great difference between those built then and now. By and by, down to the chapel again, where Bishop Morley preached upon the song of the angels, " Glory to God on high, on earth peace, and good-will towards men ". Methought he made but a poor sermon, but long, and reprehending the common jollity of the court for the true joy that shall and ought to be on these days. . . He did much press us to joy in these publick days of joy and to hospitality. But one that stood by whispered in my ear that the bishop himself do not spend one groate to the poor himself. The sermon done, a good anthem followed with violls, and the King came down to receive the sacrament.

PEPYS (Diary)

. . . . our festival, of Christmas which the Church seems to have borrowed directly from its heathen rival. In the Julian calendar the twenty-fifth of December was reckoned the winter solstice, and it was regarded as the Nativity of the Sun, because the day begins to lengthen and the power of the sun to increase from that turning-point of the year. . . The Gospels say nothing as to the day of Christ's birth and accordingly the early Church did not celebrate it. In time, however, the Christians of Egypt came to regard the sixth of January as the date of the Nativity, and the custom of commemorating the birth of the Saviour on that day gradually spread until by the fourth century it was universally established in the East . . . SIR JAMES FRAZER (The Golden Bough)

There came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

The Norfolk Coach at Christmas

Holly he hath berries as red as any rose,
The foresters, the hunters, keep them from the does,
Ivy she hath berries as black as any sloe,
There come the owls and eat them as they go;
Holly he hath birds, a full fair flock,
The nightingale, the popinjay, the gentle laverock.
Good ivy, say to us, what birds hast thou
None but the owlet that cries 'How! How!'

THE FIRST NOWELL

December 25, 1652. Christmas Day, no sermon anywhere no Church being permitted to be open, so observ'd it at home. The next day we went to Lewesham, where an honest divine preach'd.

JOHN EVELYN (Diary)

AT last the Rat succeeded in decoying him to the table, and had just got seriously to work with the sardine-opener when sounds were heard from the forecourt without —sounds like the scuffling of small feet in the gravel and a confused murmer of tiny voices, while broken sentences reached them—" Now, all in a line—hold the lantern up a bit, Tommy—clear your throats first—no coughing after I say one, two, three,—Where's young Bill?—here, come on, do, we're all a-waiting—"

" What's up? " inquired Rat, pausing in his labours.

" I think it must be the field-mice," replied the Mole, with a touch of pride in his manner. " They go round carol-singing regularly at this time of the year. They're quite an institution in these parts. And they never pass me over—they come to Mole End last of all; and I used to give them hot drinks, and supper too sometimes, when I could afford it. It will be like old time to hear them again."

KENNETH GRAHAME
(The Wind In The Willows)

As Joseph was a walking
He heard an angel sing
This night there shall be born
On earth our heavenly king.

He neither shall be born
In housen nor in hall,
Nor in the place of Paradise
But in an ox's stall

He neither shall be clothed
In purple nor in pall
But all in fair linen
As wear the babies all

He neither shall be rocked
In silver nor in gold
But in a wooden cradle
That rocks on the mould

He neither shall be christened
In white wine nor red
But with fair spring water
As we were christenéd

THE SIL

A frosty Christmas-eve
When the stars were shining
Fared I forth alone
Where westward falls the hill
And from many a village
In the water'd valley
Distant music reached me,
Peals of bells a-ringing:
The constellated sounds
Ran sprinkling on earth's floor
As the dark vault above
With stars was spangled o'er.

Then sped my thought to keep
That first Christmas of all
When the shepherds watching
By their folds ere the dawn
Heard music in the fields
And marvelling could not tell
Whether it were angels
Or the bright stars singing.

WALT WHITMAN (Specimen Days in America)

IF you look at the stars without their rays (as may be done by looking at them through a small hole, made with the extreme point of a fine needle and placed so as almost to touch the eye), you will see these stars to be so minute that it would seem as though nothing could be smaller; it is in fact the great distance which is the reason of their dimunition, for many are very many times larger than the star which is the earth with water. Think, then, what this star of ours would seem like at so great a distance, and then consider how many stars which are in longitude and latitude between these stars which are scattered through this dark expanse.

LONGFELLOW

CHRISTMAS 1903

O, the sea breeze will be steady, and the tall ship's going trim,
And the dark blue skies are paling, and the white stars burning dim;
The long night watch is over, and the long sea-roving done,
And yonder light is the Start Point light, and yonder comes the sun.

O, we have been with the Spaniards, and far and long on the sea;
But there are the twisted chimneys, and the gnarled old inns on the quay.
The wind blows keen as the day breaks, the roofs are white with the rime,
And the churchbells ring as the sun comes up to call the men in to Prime...

O, the salt sea tide of Salcombe, it wrinkles into wisps of foam,
And the churchbells ring in Salcombe to ring poor sailors home.
The belfrey rocks as the bells ring, the chimes are merry as a song,
They ring home wandering sailors who have been homeless long.

JOHN MASEFIELD

WHOSOEVER shall be found observing any such day as Christmas and the like, either by forbearing labor, feasting, or any other way upon such account as aforesaid, every such person so offending shall pay for each offense five shillings as a fine to the country.

Law passed by Pilgrim Fathers, 1659

The time draws near the birth of Christ
The moon is hid, the night is still;
The Christmas bells from hill to hill
Answer each other in the mist.

TENNYSON (In Memoriam)

THE GREAT FROST

THE Great Frost was, historians tell us, the most severe that has ever visited these islands. Birds froze in mid-air and fell like stones to the ground. . . The fields were full of shepherds, ploughmen, teams of horses and little bird-scaring boys all struck stark in the act of the moment. . . The severity of the frost was so extraordinary that a kind of petrifaction sometimes ensued. . . .

But while the country people suffered the extremity of want, and the trade of the country was at a standstill, London enjoyed a carnival of the utmost brilliancy. The Court was at Greenwich, and the new King. . . directed that the river, which was frozen to a depth of twenty feet and more for six or seven miles on either side, should be swept, decorated and given all the semblance of a park or pleasure ground, with arbours, mazes, alleys, drinking booths, etc. at his expense. For himself and the courtiers, he reserved a certain space immediately opposite the Palace gates; which, railed off from the public only by a silken rope, became at once the centre of the most brilliant society in England. . . Here and there burnt vast bonfires of cedar and oak wood, lavishly salted, so that the flames were of green, orange, and purple fire. . . But it was at night that the carnival was at its merriest. For the frost continued unbroken; the nights were of perfect stillness; the moon and stars blazed with the hard fixity of diamonds, and to the fine music of flute and trumpet the courtiers danced.

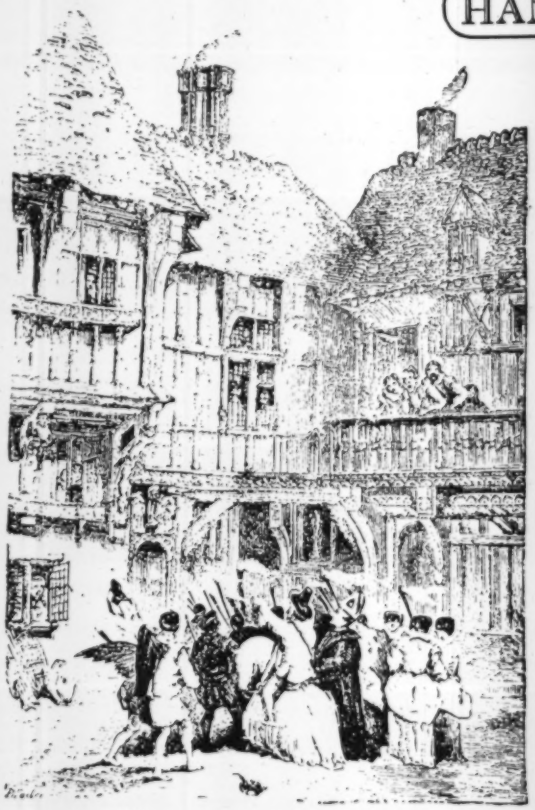
MID-WINTER

In the bleak mid-winter
Frosty wind made moan,
Earth stood hard as iron,
Water like a stone;
Snow had fallen, snow on snow,
Snow on snow,
In the bleak mid-winter,
Long ago . . .

What can I give him,
Poor as I am?
If I were a shepherd
I would bring a lamb;
If I were a wise man
I would do my part;
Yet what can I give him—
Give my heart.

CHRISTINA ROSSETTI, 1830-94

WHEN ICICLES HANG BY THE WALL



"CLAR'NETS, however, be bad at all times," said Michael Mail. "One Christmas—years agone now, years—I went the rounds wi' the Dibbeach choir. 'Twas a hard frosty night, and the keys of all the clar'nets froze—ah they did freeze! —so that 'twas like drawing a cork every time a key was opened; the players o' them had to go into a hedger and ditcher's chimney-corner, and thaw their clar'nets every now and then. An icicle o' spet hung down from the end of every man's clar'net a span long; and as to fingers—well, there, if ye'll believe me, we had no fingers at all, to our knowledge."

THOMAS HARDY (Under the Greenwood Tree)

The Christmas Rose,
last flower of the year,
That comes when holly berries
glow and cheer.

THE FESTIVE BOARD

Heap on more wood!—the wind is chill;
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still.
Each age has deem'd the new-born year
The fittest time for festal cheer:
And well our Christian sires of old
Loved when the year its course had roll'd,
And brought blithe Christmas back again.
The damsel donn'd her kirtle sheen;
The hall was dress'd with holy green;
Forth to the wood did merry-men go,
To gather in the mistletoe.
Then open'd wide the Baron's hall
To vassal, tenant, serf, and all;
The huge hall-table's oaken face,
Scrubb'd till it shone, the day to grace,
Bore then upon its massive board
No mark to part the squire and lord.
Then was brought in the lusty brawn,
By old blue-coated serving-man;
Then the grim boar's head frown'd on high,
Crested with bays and rosemary.
The wassel round, in good brown bowls
Garnish'd with ribbons, blithely trowls.
There the huge sirloin reek'd; hard by
Plum-porridge stood, and Christmas pie;
Nor fail'd old Scotland to produce,
At such high tide, her savoury goose.
Then came the merry maskers in,
And carols roar'd with blithesome din;
If unmelodious was the song,
It was a hearty note, and strong.

WALTER SCOTT (Marmion)

DECEMBER 24, 1916.—Every one . . . engaged in this irony of Christmas. What a solemn lunatic the world is. Walked awhile in a beautiful lane close by, washed hard and clean and deeply channelled by the recent rain. On the hill-top I could look right across the valley to the uplands, where on the sky-line a few Firs stood in stately sequestration from common English oaks, like a group of ambassadors in full dress. In the distance a hen clucked. I saw a few Peewits wheeling, and watched the smoke rising from our cottage perpendicularly into the motionless air. There was a clement quiet and a clement warmth, and in my heart a burst of real happiness that made me rich—even beside less unfortunate beings and beyond what I had ever expected to be again.

W. N. P. BARBELLION (The Journal of a Disappointed Man)

Men may talk of country Christmasses—
Their thirty-pound buttered eggs,
their pies of carps' tongues,
Their pheasants drenched with ambergris, the carcasses
Of three fat wethers bruised for gravy, to
Make sauce for a single peacock; yet their feasts
Were fasts compared with the city's.

'Observations and Objectives'

ROYAL COLLEGE OF NURSING STUDY CONFERENCE

WITH a reminder that on the previous day Mr. Goddard had stressed that every supervisor should have confidence in putting forward new ideas, Miss M. C. Plucknett opened the second day's proceedings of the Royal College of Nursing study conference on the recent publication Observations and Objectives by calling upon Miss M. Houghton to discuss the education and training of the nurse as presented in Chapter III of the booklet.

Education and Training

Stating that though the fundamental concepts of nursing did not change, the way of carrying them out did so, thus demanding a change in the preparation of the nurse through her basic training, Miss Houghton recalled that the principle of student status for the nurse had been stated in the Horder report. This implied that teaching should be in relation to a situation and the formal teaching should not occupy a major part of the curriculum but should be used only where useful.

Three years ago at Geneva the World Health Organization Conference on Nursing Education* had worked out a graded pattern to afford a progressive series of learning situations which were calculated to teach the student how to meet the needs of a particular patient. While not gaining complete skill in all situations the nurse would thus learn to consider problems and also how and where to get more experience. Such patient-centred teaching would mean more effective learning and if schools of nursing were primarily independent institutions the selection of curriculum content could be moulded to such a teaching pattern rather than dictated by examination requirements. Selection was essential for anyone coming into the profession—including the pupil assistant nurse. As regards temperament and suitable aptitudes, this was a matter for the individual training school to determine, with the aid of such testing tools as have been devised for the purpose. Without some fixed educational level there would be an inevitable lowering of standards, and it was a fact that "poor students get through examinations on the work of other people."

Presenting 'The Case for Research', Dr. C. M. Fletcher, C.B.E., F.R.C.P., senior lecturer, Postgraduate Medical School, and physician to Hammersmith Hospital, outlined with lucid ease the principles of research, which he defined as the endeavour to discover the facts by scientific study of a subject.

Questions asked in research projects must be clearly posed and be capable of a quantitative answer; too many questions should not be asked at once. Dr. Fletcher was not sure whether all the projects suggested in Chapter VI of the College booklet, e.g. experiments in patient-centred care', could be so measured and he gave warning of some of the dangers and possible errors that might lie ahead if expert advice was not obtained at the outset. He referred to the Medical Research Council's report The Application of Scientific Methods to Industrial and Service Medicine (H.M. Stationery Office, 1951, 3s.) and stressed the need for a clear and simple presentation of the results of a piece of research.

Miss M. G. Lawson, O.B.E., deputy chief nursing officer, Ministry of Health, suggested a number of possible lines of critical investigation in nursing which might help the profession to determine the pattern of training best suited to our changing needs. She also urged that one or more experimental schools should be set up, pleading for courage to make a new approach.

Questions raised during the afternoon session were focused upon the numbers of training schools required; problems of dilution; standards of selection for training; university degree courses in nursing and the content of a basic comprehensive training. The morning speakers were joined on the platform by Miss M. F. Carpenter, director in the Education Department, Royal College of Nursing, and Miss M. Hill, principal tutor, The London Hospital. Little new thought emerged from this discussion, in which the tendency was to dwell upon obstacles to progress rather than to attempt to define more clearly an acceptable policy of change.

On Wednesday morning Miss F. G. Goodall, C.B.E., general secretary, Royal College of Nursing, reviewed the development of the work of the College on conditions of service. She commented on the various factors determining salaries and conditions of service and recalled the setting up in 1937 of the Athlone Committee, in submitting evidence to which the Royal College of Nursing had recommended that nurses should have their own machinery for joint negotiation and consultation. This was later implemented through the Rushcliffe Committee which made great history in the nursing world in recommending the first national salary scales for the profession, and prepared the way for the present Whitley machinery to function in the National Health Service. Miss Goodall paid tribute to

* Technical Report Series, No. 60.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

From the Nursing Times, December 1906

THE MATRON VERSUS THE ARCHITECT. — When will hospital authorities learn the wisdom of consulting matrons when new structural improvements, or new hospitals, are being built? Although the matron knows nothing of architecture, and has not the slightest wish to interfere in domains so far apart from her own, she does know, and rather better than anyone else, the practical everyday needs of hospital buildings, just as every woman realizes the need for cupboards in houses, when fine corridors and beautiful arches fill the mind of the architect. In some of our new hospitals the matrons have asked in vain for sisters' sitting-rooms off their wards. Could the committee work on the wards of a hospital but for one week, they would very soon realize how necessary such small sitting-rooms are. It is not necessary, or even wise, for a sister to be perpetually in her wards, it is indeed unfair to the nurses who, whenever possible, should learn the feeling of responsibility and governing themselves without always being under the eye of their superior officer.

A lively moment during the opening session of the Study Conference in the Cowdray Hall.

the pioneer work of two former members of the College Council, Miss Olive Baggallay and Miss I. H. Charley, and to the help given by Sir Frederick Leggett in advising the College for many years past in the methods of joint consultation and negotiation.

Miss Goodall spoke also of the College's first report on Salaries and Superannuation published in 1919 from which can be assessed the great amount of economic progress made in the intervening years, despite difficulties and differences still prevailing. She touched on matters of accommodation, superannuation and hours of work—reminding her audience that in 1919 the Royal College of Nursing recommended a 48-hour week and yet after all these years the recently published report of the Dan Mason Nursing Research Committee on The Work of Recently Qualified Nurses had shown " long and awkward working hours " to be one of the chief causes of dissatisfaction mentioned as placing hospital nursing at a disadvantage compared with many other nursing posts and other occupations. It was now " a time to put ideas into action" concluded Miss Goodall.

Paying tribute to the example set by the Royal College of Nursing in promoting joint consultation over the past 10 years through its conferences, Mr. Raymond Parmenter went on to discuss the furtherance of joint negotiation and consultation. He believed there was great opportunity for extending joint negotiation in the nursing profession at the high level between management and staff sides. Joint consultation, on the other hand, mostly dealt with matters at local level, implying democratic management, and the two should not be confused.

Sir Frederick Leggett, chairman of the Labour Relations Committee of the Royal College of Nursing, with Miss E. M. Wearn, Council member, and Miss M. E. Davies, secretary, Staff Side, Nurses and Midwives Whitley Council, joined the speakers on the platform for the final plenary session. They answered some searching questions put forward by group leaders on the subject of joint consultation and negotiation which showed that the group discussions had been closely concerned with this vital topic.

Policy-making

The conference was brought to a close by Dame Elizabeth Cockayne, chief nursing officer, Ministry of Health, whose dynamic and challenging talk on 'The Professional and Personal Responsibility of the Nurse in matters of Policy-making at National and International Level' will be published in a future issue of the Nursing Times. In thanking Dame Elizabeth, Miss Plucknett said the meeting could not end on a better note. She referred also to the final sentence of the foreword in the booklet Observations and Objectives calling for the attention of all concerned with the future of the profession to translate into action. " That ", Miss Plucknett concluded, " is why you have been here ", and echoing Dame Elizabeth's question " Can your organization depend on you ? " she answered: " I'm sure it can ! "

SIR HORACE EVANS OPENS NEW WING AT ST. TERESA'S

SIR Horace Evans, physician to H.M. the Queen, opened the new wing of St. Teresa's Hospital, Wimbledon, on December 5. The hospital is staffed by nursing sisters of the Order of St. Anne's and lay nursing staff, and is the only maternity hospital in England administered by a religious order. The new wing brings the total complement up to 54 beds. The hospital receives private and National Health Service patients of all denominations and hopes to be recognized as a midwifery training school for nurses. By arrangement with Westminster Hospital, medical students spend a fortnight at the hospital as part of their midwifery training.

Mr. Vincent O'Sullivan, consulting obstetrician, said that St. Teresa's is helping to meet a demand for private and semi-private beds which is largely beyond the scope of the National Health Service. This year more than 800 mothers have had their babies at the hospital; there have been no maternal deaths and only 1.5 per cent. still-births.

Sir Horace Evans admires a new-born baby held by a nursing sister at St. Teresa's Maternity Hospital.

After the opening ceremony, board members, friends and visitors were shown round the new wing by the nursing sisters. This latest addition to the hospital, although new and shining, already takes on the atmosphere of warmth and quiet friendliness which one senses immediately on arrival.

the National Council concerning an invitation to the ICN to be placed upon a list of independent non-governmental organizations compiled for consultative purposes by the International Labour Organization; the suggestion was approved and Miss D. C. Bridges explained that the matter would be decided at a future meeting of the ICN Grand Council.

The representative of the Nurses' League, Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, was introduced and the association was welcomed as a new member. Miss Duff Grant reported a number of meetings attended and receptions given in London following the World Health Organization conference at Peebles in June and during the visit of Mlle Bihet, president of the ICN, to attend a Council meeting of the Florence Nightingale International Foundation in September. It had been arranged for the three British delegates to the recent conference at Sèvres to meet Miss Broe and Miss Arnstein before leaving for France, and on their return from Sèvres the two Canadian delegates, Miss Rita MacIsaac and Miss L. Campion, from the staff of the Canadian Nurses' Association national office, had been entertained jointly in London for two days by the National Council and the Queen's Institute of District Nursing.

The bronze statuette of Florence Nightingale, purchased from the Royal College of Nursing by the National Council for presentation to the International Council of Nurses headquarters in London, was on view at the meeting and is to be handed to the president of the ICN, Mlle Bihet, at a dinner in the House of Commons on Monday, January 7. The wording for the commemorative plaque to be placed upon the statuette was approved as follows: " Presented to the International Council of Nurses by the National Council of Nurses of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, January 1957."

Presenting the annual balance sheet and accounts, Miss D. A. Lane, hon. treasurer, said it was with satisfaction that she was able to report favourably for the first time and congratulated member associations on sending in all dues before the end of the financial year.

International Exchange of Nurses

Miss Frances Rowe, executive secretary, stressed in her report the extensive work done through the year in connection with the exchange of nurses. There had been evidence of increased numbers of nurses seeking employment in the United States of America, Canada and Australia and more programmes were being arranged for scholarship students in this and other countries. In this connection more than 900 interviews had been given at the National Council headquarters and Miss Rowe thanked all who had given help in placing these nurses and offering them so much generous hospitality. An international study tour starting on June 16 was being planned to follow the ICN Congress in Rome, with the help of the Portsmouth group of hospitals. There was a demand for a course to assist honorary treasurers and secretaries of affiliated organizations and it was proposed to arrange a two-day course of this kind.

Miss Duff Grant in giving the report of the executive committee expressed gratitude for portraits and photographs of former presidents received from member bodies. A ways and means committee was to be set up. Representatives of the Council had taken part, with representatives of the Royal College of Nursing, in discussions at the Ministry of Health, followed by joint consultations with the General Nursing Council, regarding the Minister's List of foreign trained nurses; the matter would be discussed further in the near future. The Constitution Sub-committee had considered the desirability of undertaking an independent survey but no decision had been reached and a further meeting would be called shortly.

The report of the National Florence Nightingale Memorial Committee was presented by Miss I. H. Charley who announced that the British Red Cross Society had given £1,400 to be used for scholarships, also £20 for the Library at Florence Nightingale House. Plans for Florence Nightingale Commemoration Day on May 13, 1957, included an appeal to 3,000 hospitals to help with the sale of emblems which would materially assist the upkeep of Florence Nightingale House and benefit students coming from many overseas countries to study in London by keeping the charges low. The project undertaken with the help of the Dan Mason (Chiswick) Medical Research Trust on ' The Work of Recently Qualified Nurses ' was to be continued by Miss G. A. Ramsden, R.R.C., the research organizer, who had recently attended the conference at Sèvres.

Matters relating to the ICN Congress in Rome, 1957, were reported and approved as follows;

Miss D. M. Smith to attend as proxy for the president, who would be present in her capacity as third vice-president of the ICN;

Miss M. Davies, Miss M. J. Smyth and Mrs. A. A. Woodman, to be accredited delegates, with Miss M. E. Craven, appointed by the National Florence Nightingale Memorial Committee; the executive secretary, Miss Frances Rowe, to be in attendance.

A paper to be presented by Miss P. Loe, matron of St. James' Hospital, Portsmouth, would be on the application of theory to practice with special reference to mental health and psychiatric nursing.

Mrs. B. A. Bennett referred to three papers prepared on behalf of the National Council on occupational health nursing, ophthalmic nursing and mental deficiency nursing for submission to the Nursing Services Committee, of which she said this country would have cause to be proud.

The president made the suggestion that, since it was known that an invitation had been given to hold the 1961 quadrennial congress of the ICN in Australia and since 1960 was the centenary year of the founding of the Nightingale School of Nursing, it would be appropriate if an invitation were sent from Great Britain to hold the board of directors' meeting in this country in 1959. After considerable discussion it was agreed to refer this matter back to the member associations for a considered opinion before coming to such an important decision.

NEW BRITISH STANDARD FIREGUARD

THE British Standards Institution has recently published a new British Standard (No. 2788) for fireguards for solid fuel fires. The new specification provides for the guard to be designed so that ash can be removed or the fire refuelled without removing the guard. It also specifies a mesh of not less than ½ inch or more than 1 inch, recommending the upper limit so that heat should be deflected as little as possible. A fine mesh screen as a spark guard is suggested as an additional precaution when the room is unoccupied.

An excellent fireguard produced in accordance with this British Standard's requirements was exhibited under the auspices of the Women's Advisory Council on Solid Fuel. This has a staple attachment strongly securing the fireguard to the chimney-breast, and a pair of metal discs clip neatly over the staple ring for use when the fireguard can be removed because no one is at risk, or in the summer. This fireguard has been tested for strength, and it is claimed that even if a heavy elderly person fell on top of it, though it might bend it would still prevent contact with the fire.

IT'S DIFFERENT AT HOME!

ALL ex-nurses, when they marry and start a family, hear from their envious contemporaries: "Your training must be a wonderful asset in bringing up a family. You won't ever need to worry about their health, and you'll always know how to look after them."

Mother, who has perhaps taken certificates in general and children's nursing and midwifery, may agree at first that she couldn't have undergone a better training for the career ahead of her. But, from the time labour starts, with the sequence of events outlined by the textbook proceeding as far as possible in reverse order, she realizes she must learn as she goes and, in dark moments, even feels she would do much better if she knew much less.

Take for instance, her wonderful new baby. If she were just an ordinary uninformed mother, the infants cries would be traced to their cause by rule-of-thumb queries: "Hunger? . . Pin? . . Wind?" and dealt with accordingly. Not Mrs. S.R.N. She knows that there are various kinds of neonatal wail and realizes, with horror, that hers is emitting a 'meningeal cry' and that the prognosis is black indeed.

The ordinary baby takes too much milk too quickly and returns the surplus, and his poor ignorant mother mops him up, brings up his wind, talks soothing nonsense to him for a minute or two, and returns him to his cot. Both parties to the deal are quite contented. Under the same circumstances, poor Mrs. S.R.N., if she failed to record 'projectile vomiting' in her mental notebook, is firmly convinced that her first-born has, at best, pyloric stenosis, and her anxious mind goes wandering down the rubber-floored corridors to the operating theatre.

This is a journey it often makes in the succeeding years while her lay contemporary is enjoying her infant's progress towards maturity despite such minor set-backs as teething. "Mastoid?" Mrs. S.R.N. wonders apprehensively, as a tiny fist rubs vigorously against a little ear; slight delay in walking—"Rickets? Spasticity?"; perhaps not speaking quite as soon as the horrible little prodigy next door—"Tongue tie? Deafness? Mental retardation?" wonders Mrs. S.R.N., feverishly thumbing through her old textbooks.

But babyhood is only the start of a long career of anxiety neurosis for the ex-nurse. She suddenly discovers the place of 'pyrexia of unknown origin' in the home. It is not till baby number 5 has gone through the now-familiar routine that she realizes that every childish illness doesn't necessarily have a name. She appreciates that the child who, on Thursday evening, has a soaring temperature and every symptom of malaise, is the self-same child who, hale and hearty, pleads on Friday morning that he feels "smashing", and please, oh PLEASE may he go out in the rain to practise his new skates.

She watches like a hawk for signs of impending disaster as seasonal plagues strike down her children's contemporaries. Usually, the anticipated illness by-passes her little lot and disaster strikes from a clear blue sky. Long after measles have ceased to be fashionable locally she wonders just what disease number 1 is cooking up and she can hardly believe her good fortune when it turns out to be 'merely' measles.

However, she discovers that childish ailments are not as trifling and enjoyable as memories of her own childhood have suggested and, of course, she is unlikely to have come across them during her training days except for the very occasional complication that needed hospital treatment. This sets her mind off in the familiar groove. She becomes quite certain that they—all have now contracted measles and are wallowing in ice-cream and self-pity—will develop all the dire aftermath listed in the now well-thumbed textbooks. When none of them do, she is so amazed that she rarely stops to rejoice.

Fortunately, the sense of humour that saw her through her foot-sore and doubt-ridden probationer days comes to the rescue still in times of stress. As each medical hazard is reached and safely passed, she admits sheepishly that a little knowledge is a much more dangerous thing, at any rate to a mother's peace of mind, than none at all. Strong-mindedly, she parcels up all her nursing books and sends them off on loan to a friend whose young daughter hopes shortly to start her training.

"On long-term loan" she writes, "till my own four daughters are ready to enter preliminary training school. I hope they will all want to, because", she adds, with her tongue in her cheek, "a nursing training would be such a help to them when they marry and have a family to look after!"

BOOKS for Christmas

BET IT'S A BOY, by Betty Bacon Blunt. (Angus and Robertson, 6s.)

A book without words—but none are needed, for the pictures tell the story graphically and with a light and humorous touch. It is, of course, the 'story' of the woman who finds that she is going to have a baby, and we follow her through the various stages, until the happy event itself, when 'it' turns out to be twins. An amusing gift for one who has just had, is about to have, or who hopes to have a baby.

THE TANGERINE HOUSE, by Rupert Croft-Cooke. (Macmillan, 21s.)

This is in a way a sequel to the author's story of his Sussex home, The Life for Me, but he now takes us to a Spanish villa overlooking Tangier, where he has made a new home. There are interesting chapters on "An archway which eased the severity of its lines"—from 'Tangerine House'.

Spanish food and wine, and observations and suggestions on house and garden, together with character sketches of the people —Moorish, Spanish and English—with whom the author comes in contact. An amiable book, enjoyable to read.

SOUPS, SAUCES AND SAVOURIES; GOOD FARE; COUNTY FARE. (Good Housekeeping, 1s. 6d. each).

As usual these small booklets, published by the Good Housekeeping Magazine, are well illustrated and give clear simple instructions. The title Soups, Sauces and Savouries speaks for itself; in Good Fare there are directions for main dishes, hot puddings, party 'specials', supper snacks, home-made bread, sweets and a good baking guide, whereas in County Fare there is a selection of attractive and interesting recipes to represent broad sections of the British Isles. Most branches of cookery are included, from simple breakfast dishes and main meals to cakes, preserves and sweetmeats. All are good additions to this series of pictorial booklets.

THE IRISH R. M. COMPLETE, by E. E. Somerville and Martin Ross. (Faber, 15s.)

This is a new edition of the omnibus volume previously called The Irish R.M. and His Experiences, and it contains 34 stories in all. This is a classic in sporting literature and a volume to be acquired by the many admirers of the authors' works.

INTENT TO KILL, by Michael Bryan. (Eyre and Spottiswoode, 10s. 6d.)

A medical thriller of absorbing interest, which grips the reader and maintains the suspense to the end; the scene is a big, modern Canadian hospital, and is put over most convincingly. The crime hinges on the introduction of an air embolism in a patient who has had a brain operation for damage caused by a bullet—he is an important political figure from one of the turbulent South American countries The discredited doctor who is hired to commit this crime is accompanied by two other sinister figures also on the pay-roll of a revolutionary faction who are implacably determined that their president, if he recovers from the dangerous brain operation, shall not leave the hospital alive.

Characterization is good—not only of the trio of assassins, but of the surgeons at the hospital whose personalities are well contrasted. One of the resident surgeons provides the slight but skilfully handled love interest. The nurses are superficially sketched in—but we can recognize the types! The operation on the political V.I.P. is dramatically described, and the scenes in varied parts of the hospital have an authentic air. For light reading, and true relaxation, this is a story to be recommended—but not for reading on night duty!

WHIZZ FOR ATOMS, by Geoffrey Willans and Ronald Searle. (Max Parrish, 9s. 6d.)

Admirers of Ronald Searle's drawings should note this new volume of the doings of Nigel Molesworth, the curse of St. Custard's, prolifically illustrated by this artist. By the spelling, Molesworth must be a very junior boy, or else his school's standard in this branch of education leaves something to be desired. . . 'Actually Drake was pritty tuough'; 'you wouldn't hav thort' . . . and so on, throughout 100 pages. You need to be in the mood for it.

THE HOUSEKEEPING BOOK OF SUSANNA WHATMAN, 1766-1800. (Geoffrey Bles, 6s.)

Susanna Whatman first began her housekeeping book in 1776 when, as wife of James Whatman, the famous papermaker, she became mistress of Turkey Court in Kent. What an excellent housekeeper she was. She instructed her servants both practically and morally. This slim volume of only 63 pages, with its cream cover, is a collector's piece. It gives an admirable picture of how a house should be run with firm and direct instructions, and the charming woodcuts add to its enjoyment.

MRS. GLADSTONE, by Georgina Battiscombe. (Constable, 21s.)

Georgina Battiscombe's book is the portrait of the marriage of a wise and witty woman who devoted herself to the task of helping and caring for her famous husband. Her entertaining letters, now printed for the first time, show an exuberant character and a loving wife filled with admiration for her husband. William and Catherine Gladstone, with their seven children, formed part of a remarkable circle of friends and relations. The book is based on unpublished papers at Hawarden and makes use also of further unpublished material in the British Museum and at Chatsworth. It is an interesting picture of Victorian times.

THE LIFE AND MUSIC OF GEORGE GERSHWIN, by David Ewen. (W. H. Allen, 18s.)

This is the story of the composer who took jazz from the back street and clip joint to the concert hall and smart restaurant and, perhaps more than any of his contemporaries, established the distinct style of modern American music—to be admired or disliked, but never to be ignored. David Ewen records Gershwin's life and analyses his music with sensitive appreciation; he is obviously a Gershwin fan and the reader senses his contempt for the composer's critics. Gershwin belongs to the crazy whirlwind of the twenties and early thirties and enjoyed being lionized by sophisticated society in New York, London and Paris. He died at the tragically early age of 37 from a brain tumour but had suffered all his life from what he called his 'composer's stomach'.

The continued appeal of his music and the recent success of his only opera, Porgy and Bess, at first a failure, suggests that we shall be "humming a Gershwin tune" for many a year yet. His intricate melodies and indivisible blending of voice and orchestra raise many of his songs above the popular level, while his longer works are at once recognized by their exciting rhythms, sudden shocks, variety of harmony and original use of conventional and unusual instruments.

For Children

MINNIE THE MONGOOSE (Michaela's Animal Story Books No. 1), by Michaela Denis and Mary Brooks. (W. H. Allen, 4s. 6d.)

This charmingly illustrated and produced book happily combines the simple story of a disgruntled baby mongoose with the everyday world of aeroplanes and television. Minnie, the adventurous twin, survives a series of escapades, eventually flying to England and appearing on television, but returning to Africa to live happily ever after.

THE LITTLE STRANGER, by Susan Osborn. (Dent, 10s. 6d.)

Emily and Henrietta are delighted that their cousins are coming to stay until the new baby arrives, for Emily has written a play. The ups and downs of its production and their other Christmas adventures make a charming girls' book for the 8-12-year-olds. Good printing and pleasant illustrations by Jennifer Rope.

ANNUAL FOR GIRLS (Daily Mail, 8s. 6d.)

Here is a delightful gift for any small schoolgirl. It is packed with a great variety of just the sort of items that will interest her and is profusely illustrated in a particularly lively and attractive style (or styles, for there is as much variety in the pictures as in the contents). There are short stories, party hints, puzzles, features on the ballet, on Paris, on dogs and nature subjects. Many of the pictures are in two colours and there are most attractive full colour supplements to illustrate the ballet and an interesting feature on 'Watching Butterflies'. The serious side is not entirely omitted—as, for instance, the account of Mlle Geneviève de Galard, 'The Angel of Dien-Bien-Phu'; also the article on the career of an air stewardess. The book is edited by Susan French.

THE TIGER WHO WENT TO THE MOON, written and drawn by Nancy Spain. (Max Parrish, 7s. 6d.)

This is undoubtedly the book for the modern child as soon as it is old enough to dress up in a space helmet. The story is of Nicky from South Kensington, and his lovable tiger Simpkin, who journey to the moon in a home-made space ship. There is excitement without terror in this gaily illustrated book. The animals are more appealingly drawn than the humans but the pictures of space with its colourful stars and of the safe return landing in Piccadilly are convincing.

DAILY SKETCH CHILDREN'S ANNUAL. (Associated Newspapers, 6s. 6d.)

This brightly coloured annual is a well balanced mixture—attractive stories which children can either read themselves or enjoy listening to; one or two picture stories, one Bible story and a Hans Andersen fairy tale. In addition there are several simple poems and a mixture of games and puzzles—altogether a good all-round choice.

TOO SMALL TO SEE, by Mary Neurath. (Max Parrish, 6s.)

This excellent little book in the Wonder World series describes the wonders of all kinds of things in everyday life visible only through a microscope. Cats' tongues, bees' stings, flies' feet, snowflakes and drops of water, are some of the items explained and brightly illustrated. The book is written in a clear straightforward style, designed to arouse the interest of the inquiring child. Others in the series explain the wonders of strange plants, birds and animals and the sea and seashore.

SEAWAY TO ADVENTURE, by Norman Lee. (Ward Lock, 8s. 6d.)

This is a real schoolboy's book of adventure, for Johnny Valentine, aged 14, is the hero. Emigrating to Australia with his family, Johnny not only realizes his ambition to go to sea, but gets involved in mystery and detection on the voyage, only to find even more excitements and dangers when the family reach their destination. A variety of information is slipped in, from time bombs camouflaged as tins of fruit to the nature of various wild animals, and tension is maintained to the final escape from an underground river infested by crocodiles.

SUNDAY DISPATCH BOOK OF ANIMALS. (Sunday Chronicle, 8s. 6d.)

A collection of photographs of animals with short informative notes. The animals seem to have been mainly photographed in captivity and have a slightly woebegone air, and the reproduction is of newspaper standard.

In Parliament

Increased Prescription Charges; Leukaemia Deaths; Tuberculosis Notifications

MR. Turton, Minister of Health, replied in the Commons on November 30 to criticisms of the increased charges for health service prescriptions.

He said that there was no way of reducing the cost of the service without closing beds, or reducing the service, or making the proposed alterations in charges. His estimate this year had been that the cost per item would be 4s. 6d., and that the total drug bill would be £53m. Today it appeared that the cost per item would be an average of 5s. and that the total bill would be £61m. The total cost of the health service falling on the Exchequer would be £475m.

Five-sixths of health service prescriptions were for one or two items. One-sixth, comprising over 20m. forms, had more than two items. Some had eight or nine items on one form.

He wished to see these proposals brought in with the least hardship to the most deserving cases. It was the low, fixed income group which had to be considered. He was providing for certain composite packs to be charged at a shilling. Examples were the syringe and spare needles for diabetics, the vaporizer set for bronchitis patients and the multiple pack dressings for minor wounds. The conditions governing the creation of multiple packs were that the articles must be frequently prescribed at the same time and sufficiently often to make it worth while to make them up. He had asked the British Medical Association whether it could suggest any further multiple packs, and if there were he would approach the manufacturers.

Mr. Harold Davies (Leek) asked the Minister of Health on December 3 for the figures showing death from leukaemia each year since 1945; and what percentage increase this showed over 1938.

Mr. Turton gave details which showed the number of deaths as 1,347 in 1945 and 2,224 in 1955, an increase of 27 and 86 per cent. respectively, over the deaths from leukaemia in 1938.

Mr. Viant (Willesden West) asked the Minister on November 29 how many tuberculosis notifications at the ages of 15 years, 16 years and 17 years, were recorded in each of the years 1950 to 1955; and whether he had any information respecting the number of notifications which were subsequently found not to be tuberculosis.

Mr. Turton replied.—Information is not available in the form asked for but the numbers of notifications of new cases of tuberculosis in the age group 15 years to 19 years inclusive returned by local health authorities in England and Wales in the years indicated, showed a reduction in respiratory cases from 2,024 (men) and 3,004 (women) in 1950 to 1,586 (men) and 2,044 (women) in 1955; in non-respiratory cases the figures were 304 (men) and 428 (women) in 1950; and 232 (men) and 285 (women) in 1955. I have no information on which to answer the last part of the question.

Letters to the Editor

Teaching Nursing

MADAM.—May I heartily endorse all that Miss E. Collingwood had to say in her letter regarding 'Teaching Nursing', which was published in the Nursing Times of November 30.

The writer has very adequately expressed my own views. Thank you, Miss Collingwood.

E. GOODWIN,
Sister Tutor.

MADAM.—I read with interest Miss Collingwood's letter in your issue of November 30. As a ward sister with some experience of teaching may I say that her problem is not confined to the classroom.

In the wards we note with regret the decline in nursing skills; we also realize that in this era of antibiotics and early ambulation the need for meticulous and constant nursing care is being presented with less emphasis than was formerly so. Specialization presents a further problem; in each department that she goes to the already overloaded student nurse is expected to master the increasing number of techniques peculiar to that field. Good bedside nursing is being increasingly displaced by laboratory techniques.

Miss Collingwood's difficulty is not only one of place but of emphasis. The basic art of nursing can only be taught at the bedside and I feel that as ward sisters we are failing in our most essential duty. We are too busy with our techniques and our theories to give to our patients or teach our nurses the simple but unremitting care of a sick person which is the foundation and the pride of our profession.

ELISABETH SIMPSON,
S.R.N., B.T.A. (HONS.), D.N. (LOND.)

Appreciation

May I through the Nursing Times thank D. Kopleman, matron, and staff of Oak Ward, St. Margaret's Hospital, Epping, for their kindness and patience to my son Bernard during his short stay there.

Miss D. K. C. Sykes and Miss M. Lander are retiring on January 31, 1957, after many years' service in the hospital. Will past members of the nursing staff who would like to contribute to presentation gifts please send donations to Miss I. E. Hawkins, matron.

THE MISTLETOE, itself, of the Oak, made into a powder and given in drink to those that have the falling sickness, doth assuredly health them as Mathiolus saith; but it is fit to use it for forty days together. Some have so highly esteemed of the vertues thereof that they have called it Lignum Sanctae Crucis, Wood of the Holy Cross, believing it to help the falling sickness, apoplexy and palsey very speedily: not only to be inwardly taken, but to be hung at their necks. Tragus saith, that the fresh wood of any Mistletoe bruised and the juice drawn forth and dropped into the ears that have imposthumes in them doth help and ease them within a few days.

Does winter scare you?

In winter time your resistance to dangerous infections is at its lowest ebb. And it's then that chest and nose infections can claim you an easy victim.

The wisest people don't wait for such a crisis. They avoid unnecessary risks by building up their resistance to winter ills well in advance. And when you think about it, it's the most sensible thing to do!

That's why hundreds of thousands of parents insist on a daily teaspoonful of SevenSeaS as a routine for the whole family. They know that SevenSeaS Pure Cod Liver Oil is the finest natural source of vitamins A and D. Vitamins that are essential to build up protection against the worst that winter can do. At 1/9d. a bottle, or 2/- for a pocket dispenser of 25 capsules SevenSeaS is the finest and the most inexpensive protection you can get. All chemists stock it.

NURSING SCHOOL NEWS

Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital, Stanmore

THE hospital's certificate in orthopaedic nursing was presented to 58 candidates, and 26 State-registered nurses who had completed one year's post-certificate orthopaedic training also received certificates. The awards were presented by Lady Gretton, chairman of the Rutland War Memorial Hospital house committee. An interesting report was given by Miss M. E. Sands, matron, and Miss M. E. Barnes, principal sister tutor, announced the names of the prizewinners and explained the significance of each award. Mr. J. A. Cholmeley, F.R.C.S. also gave a short address.

The gold medallist was Miss G. C. Saulez who also won the prize for orthopaedic nursing. Miss I. G. Mitchell was the winner of a distinction award and prizes in the hospital examination and for anatomy and physiology. Miss M. Coleman, S.R.N., won the post-certificate nursing prize as the best all-round nurse for the year.

Whipps Cross Hospital

THE mayors and mayoresses of five London boroughs were among those on the platform when Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, presented awards. Previously she had toured the wards and talked to many of the patients.

Miss K. Fogarty, matron, reminded nurses they were beginning their careers at a time when many were frightened of losing their employment through automation. "But automation will never trouble you", she said.

Miss A. S. Gibson won the gold medal, Miss E. M. Cockle the silver medal and Miss J. H. Crighton the bronze medal.

The London Hospital

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL W. A. D. Drummond, Director - General, Army Medical Services, presented the badges and certificates to successful students in the schools of nursing, midwifery, physiotherapy and radiography. Miss G. Ceris Jones, matron, reported that among new developments during the year was the arrangement for all student nurses to have one day during their third year of training for visiting with a health visitor, a district nurse or a home help organizer; also to visit clinics, and a variety of social service centres. This gave the student nurses a more realistic idea of the patient's home background. A second development had been the voluntary secondment of six student nurses during the third year to Goodmayes Hospital for eight weeks, and this insight into the work of a mental hospital was proving of great value. Miss Ceris Jones reported 550 student nurses at present in training and an increased turnover of patients during the year. Matron also referred to the block of flats for senior nursing staff, now almost completed.

General Drummond, on behalf of the soldier, his wife and his children, expressed gratitude for the unfailing help, throughout the years, of the nursing profession. General Drummond said that for many years he had admired the discipline and training of this nurse training school; he mentioned discipline because it instilled a sense of pride and responsibility and developed self-control. "You are going to keep alive the great traditions of your hospital and let your great profession gain through each one of you", he concluded.

BIRMINGHAM GROUP DAY COURSE

The annual one-day course arranged by the Birmingham Group of the Occupational Health Section was held on November 10 at Guest Keen and Nettlefolds (Midlands) Ltd., whose general manager, Sir Anthony Bowlby, Bt., welcomed nearly 100 nurses from industrial firms in all parts of the Midlands at the opening session. Other speakers during the morning were Miss J. Martyn, Governor of H.M. Borstal, Aylesbury, who gave an encouraging and sympathetic account of the girls who receive training there which was heard with much interest; and Mr. J. H. Small, F.R.C.S., whose talk on 'The Disturbances of the Blood Vessels of the Brain and their Surgical Treatment' was illustrated with some excellent slides.

After a delightful lunch, served on the premises, an interesting symposium on 'The Contribution of a Works Medical Service to Production' was presented under the chairmanship of Miss Edith Pitt, O.B.E., M.P., by five speakers—a personnel director, works director, chief medical officer, district organizer of a trade union and an industrial nursing sister-in-charge.

Dr. W. Jeaffreson Lloyd, chief medical officer, and Miss S. J. Matthew, sister-in-charge, Guest Keen and Nettlefolds, were responsible for the excellent planning of this most successful conference.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF NURSING APPEAL

for the Nation's Fund for Nurses

The very large sum of money which heads our list this week is the result of a whole year's hard work on the part of a group of nurses and their patients. We know that this represents much unselfish and continued effort and we offer our grateful thanks and appreciation to them all. During the past 10 years this group of nurses has given over £1,000 and this sustained effort is an example to others. We thank everyone who has given so generously this week.

From Nurse to Medical Secretary

I STARTED fever training in 1943, and spent two-and-a-half years in a small London fever hospital. From there I went on to one of the well known Metropolitan training schools. I did not complete general training as I left to get married.

My next view of hospital was from the patient's angle. I had the misfortune to contract tuberculosis. Luckily I made a good recovery. Then I realized I should have to earn my own living again. We were in financially straitened circumstances due to a patch of bad luck.

I took a secretarial course as I was not physically fit for nursing; then I tried to get a job in a hospital or with a doctor. I was unsuccessful. The prospective employers were not anxious to have me in view of my tubercular history.

A post with a commercial firm, where I remained for three years, gave me a good grounding of office routine. However, I was still anxious to get back into hospital. Finally I answered an advertisement, and was accepted as medical secretary in a specialist hospital.

I did not really remember much about the clerical staff when I was training as a nurse; I used to envy them their working hours. I thought their work must be very easy compared with mine

However, I now have a very healthy respect for them. The majority have had no nursing experience at all. They have picked up the medical terms somehow as they have gone along. What is more, they know the meaning of the words. They have an intelligent knowledge of the diseases, the treatments given, and the possible complications.

I have also changed my opinion about the clerk's job being an easy one; it is not so by any means. There are 101 things to remember. At this hospital all the patients' notes are typed. This means good shorthand. At the end of the day, when one is tired, it is easy to make mistakes—for example, typing 'left supraclavicular' instead of 'right clavicular'.

Statistics and research are also carried out at this hospital. These are rather a headache for us. We have to see that the various forms involved are correctly completed. If they are put in the wrong tray or pigeon hole this upsets the machinery. It also makes extra work for someone else.

I attend clinics, and after the doctor has examined the patient he dictates a note. Also I have to give appointments to patients for their next attendance. At holiday times one finds that either specialist or patient may be away on the date given. A clinic may last for as long as two-and-a-half hours; it is then that I envy the doctor and nurse. The clinic is finished, but my work is about to start. I stagger downstairs to my office under a pile of folders and ward notes. (In-patients on treatment attend as well as out-patients.) Then I begin typing back the notes.

In-patient notes are typed first, as these have to be returned; then the others in order of importance. For instance, a patient may have to attend the next morning for a barium swallow. The department concerned will require the notes.

The job is not without interruptions either. My main bogey, the telephone, usually rings several times. A doctor may come in and dictate a long letter for posting that same evening. The clinic doctor may 'phone a further note about a patient seen there.

There is no streaming out at 5.30 for most of us. Often it is 6 p.m., and the ward notes have to go back before we can leave. But the work has its compensations, and can be especially appealing to ex- or married nurses. There must be many who, for some reason or other, cannot continue in the profession—people, like myself, who are anxious to get back into hospital, and keep in touch with modern treatments.

I feel it is infinitely more useful work than typing out tenders for engineering plant. I like to think that in an indirect way I am helping the patients. After all, they are the main consideration. If there were no patients there would be no need of doctors, nurses, or medical secretaries.

JENNIFER JENNINGS

Filling 7,000 Stockings

A 'MOTHER' in one of Dr. Barnardo's 110 Homes has not two or three stockings to find presents for but 30 or more. Christmas at the homes is just an ordinary family Christmas; nothing unusual happens but, of course, everything has to be done on a large scale.

Christmas Eve comes along and after carol singing there are the usual last-minute things to do—rooms to decorate, turkeys to inspect, crackers to gloat over, presents to wrap up and, most important, stockings to prepare for the children. Then bedtime comes for a very excited family. On Christmas morning there is an early stir and rush and delighted shrieks when the children discover that their stockings really have been filled. It is the ever generous public who play Father Christmas to over 7,000 children of all ages and some of them physically handicapped. In the 90 years that Barnardo's has been in existence the children have never been let down and this year they are again all eagerly looking forward to Christmas morning.

STUDENT NURSE TRAINING

There are many Hospitals (including Mental Hospitals and Mental Deficiency Institutions) offering first class training facilities for young men and women to train as STUDENT NURSES and PUPIL ASSISTANT NURSES. These Hospitals are situated in South-East London, Kent and East Sussex (all within easy reach of London). Training normally lasts three years for Student Nurses and two years for Pupil Assistant Nurses and an allowance of between £260 and £285 a year is payable during training, less £119 for board, lodging and uniform. There is an additional allowance of £45 for Mental Nurse Training. If over 21 years of age, the allowance is between £390-£420 less £144 for board etc. if required. Applicants who wish to enter training should write to the South-East Metropolitan Regional Hospital Board, 11, Portland Place, W.1, stating at which Hospital or in which part of the Region they would like to train. All applications will be acknowledged and further details forwarded. If so desired an interview can be arranged with the Board's Nursing Officer.

Codis is so much better...

...when a codeine compound tablet is necessary because all the advantages of "Disprin", which you know so well, have been embodied in the "Codis" tablet. The aspirin in Codis is in the form of soluble aspirin as in Disprin. This means that there is far less likelihood of stomach upset. The tablet disperses promptly in water, making it easier to administer, and prompt relief is ensured.

Codis is recommended for all those conditions in which a codeine compound tablet is indicated.

Codis is a compound tablet containing soluble aspirin with codeine and phenacetin

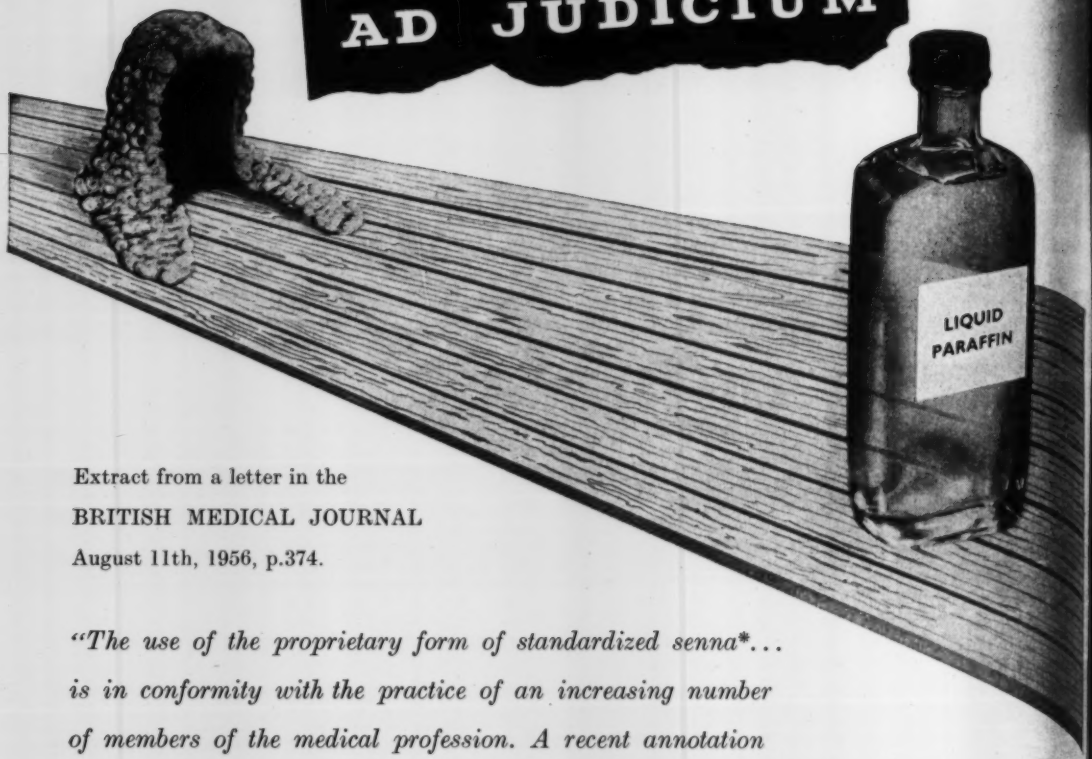
ARGUMENTUM AD JUDICIUM



Extract from a letter in the
BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL
August 11th, 1956, p.374.

"The use of the proprietary form of standardized senna... is in conformity with the practice of an increasing number of members of the medical profession. A recent annotation in the Journal incriminates liquid paraffin as a cause of lipoid pneumonia and as an obstacle to the absorption of fat-soluble vitamins . . . and to the healing of wounds. In these days of economy in prescribing . . . the biologically standardized form of senna . . . is cheaper by half than paraffin, is far easier to dispense, and there is no wastage of storage space."*

* Senokot — the only standardized, fully active preparation of senna.
Re-educative and curative in chronic constipation.
